

Skid School History

Stevens Advanced Driver Training was established in 1979 to train police, EMTs, and municipal and corporate employees. In the late 1990's, founder Sandy Stevens expanded Skid School to include new drivers. Skid School was written into Massachusetts law in 2006 (Mass. 540 CMR 23.01) and has trained over 6,000 new drivers.

Skid School instructors provide hands on training in accident avoidance during our half-day schools.

"The 5 hours I spent with my son were, without question, the best time I have spent with him in recent memory. The experienced instructors took us through all the steps necessary to get the most response out of a car in emergency situations."

Important for Every Driver
Essential for Teens

The Problem

Studies show that most teen crashes are caused not by some willful form of bad behavior, but by pure inexperience. We are not doing enough as a society to prepare our most accident-prone drivers for a life on the road.

The Answer

More training! Teens are told how to react in emergency situations, but never actually taught.

At Skid School, your teen will be taught driving skills on a safe, closed course with an instructor in the car at all times. This unique, four-hour course will give them the opportunity to practice real-life avoidance scenarios over and over at highway speeds in our cars. Skid School gives new drivers the car control skills and confidence they need to avoid crashes as well as a new respect for the danger and potential consequences of a loss of control.

Car crashes kill over 6,000 teens each year, and seriously injure 300,000. With numbers this outrageous, it's shameful we don't search for the cure the same way we do with diseases. We can cut those numbers in half with a 4-hour training. A three year study* on 150 Skid School-trained new drivers shows that our drivers crashed at less than half the rate of their peers.
